INTRODUCTION

Gender equality constitutes a fundamental human right and basic aim of every modern democracy. Our vision is of a society in which men and women equally share goods, obligations and rights - in work, politics, power, leisure time, care, family and personal life. A society in which men and women decide what they are going to study, which types of work they are going to undertake, how many children they will have, whether they will participate in public affairs – all without the burden of gender stereotypes that proscribe professions, salaries, tasks and earnings, and also the minutiae of daily life.

Due to the severe current global and national economic crisis, the inequality between men and women's living and working conditions is growing. I believe that during crisis periods, the principle of gender equality is not a luxury. Rather, it is a core component of economic, social and cultural policies enacted to emerge from the crisis.

Crises always more strongly affect weaker population groups, in which women constitute the majority. When gender-based discrimination is interwoven with and aggravated by other types of social discrimination (class, ethnic origin, disability, age, sexual orientation, remote residency, etc), large categories of women face multifaceted discrimination. Women that are unemployed, immigrants, young, single parents, disabled, of ethnic and religious minorities, Roma, living on islands or in mountainous areas – these are all groups of women more vulnerable not only to the effects of economic crisis, but also to male violence in all its forms. I consider it absolutely essential that public interventions give these groups of women top priority.

Taking into account on the one hand the government's approach vis-à-vis the provision of services to all the country's citizens –men and women alike– and on the other hand the conclusions drawn by feminist analyses of public policies, we have drafted this National Programme for Substantive Gender Equality 2010-2013.

This Programme is of national scope. Its actions cover all the country's regions, addressing a wide range of regional as well as national public policies.

In accordance with the framework of good governance –including transparency and accountability– extensive consultation has been undertaken with women’s organisations, all parliamentary parties’ women’s groups, and with all former General Secretariats for Gender Equality. Evaluation of Programme results shall be conducted on an annual basis.

This Programme does not constitute solely a statement of intentions. Rather, it contains also a coherent set of activities planned and under implementation by the staff of the GSGE Applications Department. This work is funded by the National Strategic Reference Framework (NSRF).

All of us working in the GSGE will be satisfied if, at the end of this Programme, gender equality in Greece will have taken a step forward – if the following Programme, beginning in 2013, will find a solid foundation upon which to build.

Maria Stratigaki
General Secretary for Gender Equality
October 2010

MAIN PRINCIPLES AND GOALS

Globally, men and women continue to experience unequal conditions and gender-based discrimination in all sectors of their lives. Such discrimination is rooted in significant gender differentiations in employment, the family, politics and the economy. Grounded as it is in generally accepted and tenacious gender role stereotypes –overtly or covertly, consciously or unconsciously expressed in all aspects of contemporary societies– this discrimination remains, and is reproduced.

Since the 1970s, gender equality has constituted a distinct aspect of public policy at international and European level – and in Greece, since 1981. All international and European organisations are taking action to combat gender discrimination:

- The UN has declared the fulfilment of women’s rights as a millennium priority, and continues its efforts vis-à-vis the implementation of the International Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW) in all countries.
- The European Union continues to hold its member states accountable to the goal of gender equality, which was one of the primary goals of the Union as set out in the founding EU Treaty.
- Following on its other activities on other aspects of gender equality, the Council of Europe has subsequently established the combating of violence against women as its priority.

In Greece, from 1981 until now, significant gender equality policies have been developed in relation to employment, education, decision-making and public awareness. In parallel, legislation has been reviewed in order to be adjusted to the constitutional principle of gender equality. The Greek Constitution recognises the necessity for the State to take measures to promote substantive equality between men and women, particularly in connection with “the removal of existing inequalities especially to the detriment of women” (Article 116, Greek Constitution, par. 2).

Until recently, most interventions have treated women as a separate social category experiencing discrimination due to their sex. They did not sufficiently highlight the fact that gender relations impact all areas of social life, transforming living and working conditions for both women and men. Men and women’s positions are under constant re-negotiation. Thus, so too, any state institutional interventions should be consistently adjusted to the evolving framework of gender patterns, in order to improve women's status in specific social situations.

The current government has set as a goal the improvement of the everyday life of women and men. The General Secretariat for Gender Equality (GSGE) is working on the elimination of gender inequalities and the achievement of substantive gender equality in all aspects of our society (see ANNEX E' "GSGE Employee List").

This National Programme for Substantive Gender Equality 2010-2013 has been drafted with four strategic goals in mind:

1. Protection of all women's rights through the promotion of gender equality and the orientation of interventions towards groups of women facing multiple discrimination.
2. Prevention and combating of all forms and types of violence against women.
3. Support of women's employment and their financial independence.
4. Utilisation of cultural creation in order to highlight the goal of gender equality.

In the preparation process of this Programme, methods and good practices of international and European organisations were used, according to which the following shall be developed in parallel:

- specialised equality policies addressing women or men in sectors in which they are underrepresented,
- cross-cutting interventions throughout the range of public policy, so as to tackle gender-based discrimination in each and every field of policy implementation.

Such a two-pronged approach to the promotion of gender equality has been utilised since 1995 (UN Beijing Platform for Action, and European Committee Announcement on gender mainstreaming).

The Programme includes measures, such as: improvement, enhancement and implementation of legislation; development of affirmative actions for certain groups of women; gender mainstreaming public policies, including economic ones; enhancement of administration mechanisms; empowerment of civil society and women's organisations as well as the organisation of campaigns to sensitise public opinion in order to prevent and change gender-based stereotypic roles.

The National Strategic Reference Framework (NSRF) 2007-2013, Operational Programme (OP) “Public Administration Reform”, is the central funding framework of these policies and activities.

In order to make use of the scientific knowledge on gender issues and active citizens’ experiences, this Programme is informed by and interacts with the scientific community, research and gender studies, as well as with civil society, women and feminist organisations.

Constant consultation and accountability, particularly important for the improvement of policy quality and effectiveness, require the enhancement of gender equality institutions, as well as the implementation and monitoring of gender equality policies. In order to ensure transparency and credibility in the implementation of this Programme, an in-depth analysis of goals achievement and effectiveness of actions shall be conducted. This assessment shall be reflected in Annual Activity Reports. Ongoing and systematic consultation with civil society on Programme implementation shall be supported by bodies and structures that coordinate the activities of all jointly competent government agencies.

The Programme is structured on three pillars. They entail, respectively:

- a. proposed legislative regulations to improve family law, reform and enhance legislation addressing violence and introduce new provisions aimed at substantive gender equality;
- b. GSGE specialised gender equality policies (interventions in selected areas of public policy and creation of policy making institutions, structures and bodies); and
- c. interventions by other Ministries and public agencies which foster gender equity via public policies (mainstreaming policies).

FIRST PILLAR

IMPROVEMENT, ENHANCEMENT AND IMPLEMENTATION OF LEGISLATION

Legal guarantee of gender equality and women's institutional rights is required in order to ensure that democracy is not hindered by direct or indirect discrimination, as well as to combat practices that infringe upon the principle of gender equality and harm women's dignity.

Legislative Committees have been established to draft provisions to improve and enhance existing legislation. Such committees shall recommend legislative interventions, aiming at: a) improving family law, b) combating violence against women, and c) promoting substantive gender equality (see ANNEX B "Legislative Committees of Experts"). The Committees shall take into consideration the views expressed by women's organisations, the provisions of recent International and European Conventions and other official instruments (UN, European Council, EU), as well legislation by other European countries, such as Spanish Laws: a) "Framework Law on Integrated protective measures against gender violence" (2004) and b) "Framework Law on substantive equality between men and women" (2007).

Supplementary tools shall be used to foster most effective application of legislation, such as:

- codification of gender equality legislation (PROJECT 1),
- a priori systematic gender impact assessment of new bills, as foreseen in the GSGE Project related to gender mainstreaming in public policies (PROJECT 2),
- cooperation with the Ombudsman and the Consumer's Counsel in relation to the implementation of laws on equal treatment of men and women in the labor market (Law 3488/2008) and access to goods and services (Law 3769/2009).

More specifically, the work of Legislative Committees is as follows:

1. Amendment of Family Law

Family Law shall be amended so as to be fully harmonised with the Constitutional Principle of Gender Equality and the protection of women's rights within the context of the unequal economic and social conditions under which most women currently live. Indicatively, proposed provisions shall address the following issues:

- Re-introduction of permanence of spouses' surnames.
- Modernisation of the legal provisions on adoption.

- Ensuring alimony payment.
- Unification and expedition of court procedures vis-a-vis hearing of Family Law cases.
- Children's' last name acquisition to ensure gender equality.
- Issues of parental responsibility in divorce cases.
- Amendments in the cohabitation agreement.

2. Law on combating violence against women

Violence is a harsh expression of social inequality. Violence against women is gender-based violence, since it is inextricably linked to the victim's and offender's gender. New legislative provisions on combating violence against women shall place emphasis on awareness and protection measures for victims. They shall refer to all forms of violence committed against women, physically, psychologically, verbally and morally. In parallel, legislation shall focus on safeguarding victims' rights, such as their right to be informed and to free legal assistance, their right to employment and social insurance, their economic rights, etc.

The preparation of a Unified Bill on violence against women reflects the cross-sectional character of gender violence and is an internationally accepted method for legislative addressing of the multiple and complex aspects of such criminal activities that penetrate all aspects of everyday life. More specifically:

Domestic violence: improvement of Law 3500/2006 on domestic violence and enhancement of the framework addressing domestic violence by creating support centres for victims and offering them temporary refuge.

Employment-related violence: improvement and enhancement of Law 3488/2006 in relation to the implementation of the principle of equal treatment of men and women in labour market access, with a special chapter on sexual harassment and violence in the workplace.

Social violence: improvement and enhancement of legislation addressing crimes such as rape (Law 1419/1984) and human trafficking (Law 3064/2002 and P.D. 233/2003). Ratification of the Council of Europe Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings. (Warsaw, 2005) and of the European Council Convention on Violence against Women, which is currently being elaborated, shall be included in the Bill.

In addition, some cross-cutting issues shall be also addressed:

- Enhancement of the GSGE institutional role (Counselling Centres) in the confrontation of violence against women in all of its forms and protection of the victims,
- Expansion of provisions on legal assistance to victims in cooperation with Bar Associations,
- Establishment of a National Observatory on combating violence against women.

3. Law on the promotion of substantive legal equality

The proposed bill is grounded in the cross-cutting dimension of gender equality, which constitutes the most common approach of anti-discrimination modern law. The innovations of the proposed bill include the establishment of active policies for the effectuation of the principle of gender equality (gender mainstreaming, gender budgeting, gender proofing), the promotion of the equality principle at all levels of economic, social and cultural activity, and - most importantly - the creation of policy making and results assessment mechanisms. The provisions shall indicatively include:

- More effective protection against discrimination and enhancement of equal treatment in employment and in access to goods and services;
- Promotion of equal treatment and equal opportunities, as well as removal of gender stereotypes in the field of education;
- Improvement of mass media legislation vis-a-vis women's dignity in TV shows and commercials;
- Effective implementation of the principle of gender equality in public policies and active intervention of Ministries in the implementation and monitoring of gender policy impacts;
- Ensuring of balanced participation of men and women in decision-making, with the aim of improved representation and, therefore, improved democracy;
- Provision of motivation for promoting enterprises' social responsibility re: gender equitable promotion;
- Reformation of the institutional framework that governs: a) the National Committee on equality between men and women and b) the Inter-ministerial Committee on gender mainstreaming.

SECOND PILLAR

SPECIALISED POLICIES FOR GENDER EQUALITY

According to the most recent statistics (May 2010), only 48.9% of women aged between 15 and 64 are employed, while the unemployment rate for women is 15.9% as compared to 8.5% for men (March 2010). Women are paid 78% of men's salaries, due mostly to occupational segregation. The majority of poor people are women, mainly single parents. Only 17.3% of Greek Parliamentarians are women. Domestic violence is overwhelmingly exercised by men against women. There have been forty victims of domestic violence murdered over the last three years (see TABLE "Statistics on women's status").

The aforementioned indicated statistics demonstrate the immediate need to develop specialised gender equality policies. This National Programme includes interventions that aim at:

- A. combating gender inequality in specific public policy fields, and
- B. the creation or enhancement of policy making institutions, structures and bodies.

Interventions are supported by specific PROJECTS, designed and supervised by volunteer Scientific Committees, with the participation of university members, experts and representatives of competent agencies (see ANNEX C "Scientific Committees").

Projects are funded by the National Strategic Reference Framework (NSRF) ("Administrative Reform" OP, "Human Resource Development" OP, "Digital Convergence" OP) and are currently at different phases of implementation. Work Programmes have already been prepared for most of them.

A. Public policy fields

A1. Violence against women

Violence against women in all its forms, such as maltreatment by husbands/partners (sexual, physical, psychological, economic, verbal), illegal trafficking in women for sexual/financial exploitation, rape and sexual harassment in the workplace comprise conspicuous violations of women's fundamental rights. Gender violence continues in every country and civilisation, leading to deaths of women as well as serious physical and psychological losses in the lives of women, their families and society in general. Although most societies forbid violence, in reality violence is often covered up or tolerated.

Prevention and combating of violence against women in our country is the subject of the National Programme for prevention and combating of violence against women 2009-2013, as announced in November 2009. This Programme includes actions, such as the creation of Counselling Centres and Shelters in the capital city of each Region, the operation of a National Emergency SOS Telephone Line, the running of awareness-raising campaigns to prevent violence, etc (PROJECT 3, PROJECT 4, PROJECT 5, PROJECT 6).

The development of GSGE cooperation relations and networks with civil society (NGOs, women's organisations, regional initiatives, local and regional government, mass media, professional unions and associations, etc) enhances the effectiveness of actions for combating violence, facilitating abused women to "break the silence" and access GSGE Counselling Centres for assistance.

A2. Multiple Discrimination

Women's fundamental rights are seriously threatened when gender discrimination is aggravated by other kinds of discrimination such as that based on nationality, physical ability, social isolation, etc.

During the last twenty years, immigrant women have actively contributed to the economic and social life of our country. They work primarily as dependent care workers, and they have taken over a significant part of domestic duties, facilitating Greek women's employment. Most women immigrants, especially those employed in cleaning and catering companies, face problematic working conditions, little social insurance coverage and low salaries. GSGE offers immigrant women counselling and information services in order to confront violence and improve their professional skills. Their access to Counselling Centres shall be facilitated by information material translated into languages from their countries of origin.

Single-parent families face greater pressure within family, working and social environments. Women are the overwhelming majority of single parents in Europe, and in Greece (91%). GSGE actions related to single-parent families are focused on the effort to improve the institutional framework and broaden facilities within working environments, health services and social policy. Through its Counselling Centres, GSGE offers consistent and reliable information and publishes related information brochures.

Improvement of the quality of life of handicapped women, who are more likely to become victims of violence, as well as for mothers of handicapped children, has been set as a Programme goal. GSGE cooperates with the newly-established Committee on Gender Equality Issues of the Handicapped Persons National Confederation, aiming to execute an Incorporation Plan to ensure for access to all GSGE services.

In cooperation with international NGOs and other organizations such the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and the Greek Council for Refugees, GSGE develops actions for women and girls immigrants and asylum seekers, who are more vulnerable and are in jeopardy of experiencing domestic violence, trafficking, etc.

GSGE cooperates with “EPANODOS” (a private entity) run by the Ministry of Justice, Transparency and Human Rights to create training programmes for women detainees and former detainees. These provide an opportunity for them to generate income and improve the conditions for their integration into their family, society and the labour market after their release.

The establishment of GSGE Counselling Centres in all Regions shall provide the opportunity to support other groups of women that face multiple discrimination as well, such as drug addicted women, homeless women, Roma women, etc.

A3. Reproductive and sexual health

In collaboration with the General Secretariat for Youth and the General Secretariat for Public Administration, a campaign is about to be launched to inform youth (men and women) about sexual health. It will focus especially on contraception, aiming to diminish the recourse to abortions, as their percentage remains at high levels in our country.

In cooperation with the competent services of the Ministry of Health and Social Solidarity, GSGE Counselling Centres shall offer information on women's health issues, conception and contraception, artificial insemination, sexually transmitted diseases and AIDS. At the same time, GSGE shall establish collaborative relations with NGOs working to combat some types of cancer (cervical and breast cancer) affecting women by informing them about the necessity of preventive medical examinations.

A4. Employment

A key goal of the development of European and national policy is the full and equal integration of women into the labour market. Increased and long-term unemployment of women in Greece requires a combination of multiple-pronged and holistic approaches, due to its multiple economic, social and psychological impacts.

Employment counsellors of GSGE Counselling Centres shall support employed women, self-employed women and owners of small enterprises with the aim of upgrading their knowledge and skills in order to improve their labour market status (PROJECT 8). Women who conclude the specialised gender counselling process in GSGE Counselling Centres shall be entitled, within the framework of an integrated action for the support of unemployed women, to continue their training with guaranteed employment (PROJECT 9). GSGE work in the field of women's employment and the promotion of gender equality in the labour market also includes its assistance to the Action Plan for gender mainstreaming of the Hellenic Manpower Employment Organisation.

As far as harmonising professional and family life, women continue to shoulder the responsibility of dependants (children, elderly, patients, disabled persons, etc) and domestic duties. As a result, they participate in the labour market under inferior terms than men, and for shorter periods of time. The equalisation of retirement ages recently imposed for both women and men presumes the taking of accompanying measures to support parents of minor children and the changing of traditional attitudes and roles in relation to care and domestic duties. This includes presupposing that men take on a double role in the labour market and their families, so as to decrease the unpaid work burdens that are mostly carried out by women. Measures such as the enhancement of all-day schools, increase of nominal insurance term due to pregnancy and extension of paid parental leaves shall be accompanied by an organised public awareness-raising campaign run by GSGE aiming at the equal distribution of paid and non-paid work in the family/private life and the labour market (PROJECT 9).

According to the current Memorandum of Understanding entered into between GSGE and the Greek Network for Corporate Social Responsibility, GSGE shall encourage enterprises to develop not only favourable activities for women, in order for women to become active participants in decision-making, but also policies that may help the balancing of professional and family duties of employed men and women. Under the Memorandum, an Equality Prize has been established for enterprises, as well as rewards for network members that implement gender equality policies.

Women's financial independence has been promoted by the provision of the recent Taxation Law (Law 3842/2010) according to which, from 2011 on, spouses shall make separate tax statements and shall be separately refunded according to their personal incomes. As a result, taxation shall be carried out for each spouse independently.

A5. Fostering Women's Participation in Decision-making and Civil Society

The increase of women's participation in politics is a prerequisite for democracy, credibility of the political system, and utilisation of the entire spectrum of social experience. The group of measures programmed by GSGE in this connection include actions to underscore the necessity of women's representation, binding measures for their inclusion in voting papers (quotas), support actions for candidates and elected women politicians (experiential seminars, etc) as well campaigns for to support election of women (PROJECT 10).

In 2010, emphasis shall be placed on visibility of women in the Regional and Municipal elections, and on gender mainstreaming in local governance within the context of the new framework of "Kallikratis" Programme. The organization of a conference entitled "City of Equality" at the beginning of 2011 –in cooperation with the Equality Committee of the Central Union of Municipalities and Communities of Greece (KEDKE)– shall be the landmark in this connection. Respectively, in 2013, emphasis shall be given to national and European elections, preceded by a related European Conference on "Women in Leadership" (20 years after Athens Declaration).

At the same time, support shall be provided for the establishment of women or gender equality offices or committees as well as for the fostering of women networking within secondary and tertiary organisations of social partners (General Confederation of Greek Workers (GSEE), Supreme Administration of Greek Civil Servants (ADEDY), Hellenic Federation of Enterprises (SEV), General Confederation of Greek Agrarian Associations (GESASE), Greek Small Businesses and Trades Association (GSEVE), National Confederation of Greek Trade (ESSE). These will aim to enhance women's status in the negotiation mechanisms of social dialogue, so as to highlight and promote their demands (PROJECT 11).

In modern European societies, the level of civil society development is a barometer for democracy. This Programme includes the reinforcement of actions by women's, feminist and non-governmental organisations promoting gender equality. The goal is to utilise the range of knowledge and experience gained by women's and mass movements, to boost their administrative organization by enhancing their human capital, and to upgrade their negotiating capacity and power (PROJECT 12). At the same time, there is a dedicated space available on the GSGE website for women's organisations to make their proposals, therefore giving them broad exposure and facilitating consultation with them.

GSGE shall monitor the implementation of the law stipulating the minimum participation of at least 1/3 of each sex in the Administrative Boards of Organisations that are supervised by the Greek State, as well as in the Service Councils of the Greek State (Law 2839/2000, article 6).

A6. Mass Media

The role of mass media (press, radio, TV and internet) in the reproduction of gender stereotypes is pivotal, as the information that they communicate formulates social conscience, educates, informs and sensitises citizens, including men and women of all ages. Images depict women in a way that systematically degrades them or reinforces traditional patterns, influencing the public and reproducing gender patterns, sexist behaviours and beliefs.

In order to limit the reproduction of sexist patterns (violence, traditional roles of men and women, etc), GSGE has been systematically cooperating with the Hellenic Broadcasting Corporation (ERT). It shall contribute to: a) the support of gender equality policies by acting as a communication consultant and b) the promotion of public dialogue and the establishment of programmes on gender equality issues. At the same time, within the framework of corporate responsibility, ERT - in cooperation with GSGE - shall develop actions, including the co-production of documentaries and the development of programmes that aim at the limitation of gender stereotypes and images of violence against women.

GSGE cooperates with monitoring bodies of programmes and advertisement spots (Greek National Council for Radio and Television and Communication Monitoring Council), in order to enhance the respective ethics codes with criteria that limit sexist behaviours and provide initiatives for the production of programmes and advertisements which promote equality. Upon the adoption of the European Directive 2007/65/EC concerning the pursuit of television broadcasting activities, GSGE shall take over the responsibility to inform and sensitise the competent bodies re: new legislation regulations in the field of women's dignity protection.

The awarding of prizes shall continue: a) "Eleni Alitzoglou" gender equality prize by the 'Botsis' Institute for the Promotion of Journalism and b) to a movie that promotes gender equality in cooperation with Thessaloniki International Film Festival. A new prize shall be established in cooperation with the Hellenic Advertisers Association, which shall be awarded to the television spot that promotes alternative gender life and labour patterns (i.e. participation of genders in all activities of private/family, social and professional life) (PROJECT 13).

A7. Arts and Culture

Stereotypes about men and women are also reproduced in the field of art and culture, as cultural creativity in general may become a transmission mechanism for social beliefs, attitudes and gender patterns of their creators. GSGE sets as a priority the enhancement of cultural creation on the thematic axis: "Gender equality – Women's fundamental rights". More specifically, men and women artists shall be supported to create paintings, sculptures, videos, installations, performances, photos, netart, documentaries, dance, theatre and literature. Such actions shall be enacted in cooperation with the Ministry of Culture and Tourism, the Hellenic Museum of Contemporary Art, the Greek Film Archive, the National Book Centre, the Hellenic School of Orchestral Art, the National Theatre of Northern Greece, as well as with other related bodies (PROJECT 14).

Cooperation with educational departments of embassies shall also be developed to support interculturalism in cultural creation on gender equality issues by organising exhibitions, events and other joint activities. A two-week art event is planned for March 2012.

B. Policy making institutions, bodies and structures

The cross-cutting and multilateral character of gender equality policies creates the necessity to improve and empower policy making institutions, bodies and structures aiming to expand public and civil society agencies' involvement, and to more effectively coordinate efforts made by the agencies working in the field of gender equality.

B1. Counselling Centres of the General Secretariat for Gender Equality (GSGE)

Part of the mandate of the GSGE, as the sole specialised public service with the goal to promote substantive gender equality, includes the operation of Counselling Centres for women all over the country (in 13 capitals of the Regions). The creation of such Centres helps meet the policy, and overarching goal, of the government to serve men and women citizens.

Grounded in the experiences of its core two (2) Counselling Centres for the acceptance of mistreated women (in Athens and Piraeus), and its five (5) Counselling Centres for Employment and Entrepreneurship which operated in the Research Centre for Gender Equality (KETHI), GSGE has designed Counselling Centres which shall serve women victims of violence, unemployed and employed women. The philosophy for women's counselling includes methods of holistic approach to women's problems, given that they are closely interrelated and they cannot be dealt with in a segmental manner. Counselling Centres shall provide specialised counselling. More specifically, they shall provide legal counselling, legal assistance in cooperation with bar associations, psychological-social support, employment and entrepreneurship counselling as well as information on health issues and on topics that are related to gender studies and documentation of gender inequalities.

B2. Library on Gender and Equality (LGE)

The promotion of gender equality requires policies based on scientific knowledge, documentation, research and information. The GSGE Library on Gender and Equality has been operating since 1981 as a collection area for specialised books and publications on gender and women's movement issues. It also organises related events.

New documentation technologies require the digitising and filing of documents (written and oral) and research projects, in order for them to be accessible to experts and the public alike. GSGE fosters the upgrading of the Library services by intervening in two separate documentation sectors: a) development and pilot operation of a digital thematic depository and b) expansion and digitising of the Library's historical archive. These activities will be preceded by mappings of the Library's holdings in its two main areas (PROJECT15).

B3. Public Policy Monitoring Structure

The multidimensional character of gender relations is reflected in all activities of human life, public and private alike. The factors that create and reproduce inequalities in selected areas of public life may be identified by a series of specialised studies and researches. The gender gap in employment, social, political and cultural fields may be measured using the tools of social sciences and may be assessed on a gender basis. The UN and the EU have established a system of gender indicators in all fields, which indicate the existing conditions in each member-state and by which quantified targets are set for national gender equality programmes. Based on a specialised gender indicator system, it is possible to monitor the progress in every field of policy and to identify measures that facilitate acceleration of substantive equality.

GSGE shall develop a specialised structure for the monitoring of gender mainstreaming and shall make a gender impact assessment in relation to public policies (PROJECT 16). This structure shall support, coordinate and cooperate with gender experts throughout public administration and with independent authorities such as the new Statistical Service of Greece, the Ombudsman, and the Consumer's Counsellor. In parallel, it shall cooperate with Regional Committees on Gender Equality (PEPIS) and shall support the Interministerial Committee on Gender Equality, the National Committee on Equality between Women and Men and the National Observatory for Prevention of and Combating Violence against Women.

B4. Internet portal

Constant, direct and valid information and communication on issues of gender equality is both a priority and a factor that empowers women's social status (PROJECT 17).

Through the operation of its interactive portal, GSGE shall:

- a. develop interactive services providing information on salient topics to women and citizens in general,
- b. provide support and consultation to women's groups via the use of the internet, in cooperation with the 24hr/day SOS emergency telephone line for victims of violence,
- c. produce training tools for major digital skills and e-services,
- d. Utilise national expertise on gender equality via the open interaction process of creating a Registry for gender experts.

- Reformation of the National Committee for Equality between Men and Women (Law 3491/2-10-2006), emphasising the development of consultation and cooperation with women and feminist organisations.

B7. Research Centre for Gender Equality (KETHI)

KETHI is a powerful and flexible mechanism that supports the work of GSGE. Its notable research activities, and gamut of action plans implemented between 1994 and today, have rendered the Centre a key player for gender equality promotion in Greece. Currently, GSGE is utilising the wide experience and substantial know-how acquired via KETHI projects (documentation, women's consultation, awareness campaigns, studies / research and publications) to execute the National Programme. More specifically, KETHI shall take on:

- a) the role of technical counsellor to NGOs, within the framework of support of women's organisations and NGOs active in the field of gender equality (PROJECT 12),
- b) along with women's organisations active in the promotion of women in decision-making centres, the main target of this Project (PROJECT 10),
- c) The role of scientific coordination in the consultation of women on employment in projects related to enhancing women's experiences in the labor market (PROJECT 8 & PROJECT 9).

In parallel, KETHI shall continue to implement important Programmes funded by:

- the European Economic Area (EEA) for the support of socially vulnerable population groups and their integration into society (PROJECT 18),

- INTERREG European Territorial Cooperation Programme on information and awareness-raising on gender issues vis-a-vis economic policies at local level (PROJECT 19).

THIRD PILLAR

GENDER MAINSTREAMING

The specialised gender equality policies developed by the General Secretariat for Gender Equality shall become more effective when the goal of equality is integrated simultaneously in all public policies that constitute the entirety of governmental work. The European strategy for gender mainstreaming denotes ways in which all public policies can include equality in their development and implementation.

Drawing on the 3rd CSF (2000-2006), a gender mainstreaming strategy has begun to be implemented in Greece as of 2000. However, it has not achieved the desirable effects. During the 4th Programming Period of the European Structural Funds (2007-2013), the “indication of the financial, social and development character of gender equality issues” is noted as one of the NSRF general goals. And, gender mainstreaming is referred to as an improvement factor for the quality of public policies. GSGE is responsible for the development, coordination and monitoring of gender equality policies in the NSRF. A tool in this connection is the gender mainstreaming Guide in NSRF Operational Programmes, which will facilitate the development of projects that promote gender equality (PROJECT 20).

As far as all national public policies are concerned, GSGE has ensured the required cooperation of the competent General Secretaries, who shall promote the strategic goal of gender mainstreaming in central and regional policies of the country, so as to decrease the gender gap in the target-group that the respective policies address. Therefore, GSGE has developed and shall support the preparation and pilot implementation of Action Plans on gender mainstreaming in Ministerial and Regional policies (PROJECT 2).

Civil servants and public administration officials are key players in the viability and effectiveness of Action Plans and the enrichment of public life with gender equality principles. Therefore, GSGE has developed training and awareness-raising projects in cooperation with the National Centre for Public Administration and Local Government (EKDDA) and the National School for Diplomats (PROJECT 7). The Projects are tailored to:

- Public administration officials who receive mistreated victims (police officers, hospital personnel of outpatients clinics, etc) in order to deal more efficiently and more sensitively with women victims of violence,
- Correctional officers in women's detention facilities,
- Employees in municipal and regional immigration services, to deal more appropriately with women immigrants and family reunification issues,
- Employees in new offices established under the national administration reformation in municipalities, to deal with social policy and gender equality,
- Social Inspectors, men and women of the Corps of Labor Inspectors (CLI) to promote the principle of equal treatment between men and women in the field of employment, and reinforce monitoring in relation to the implementation of the respective employment legislation,
- Diplomats, on issues related to the role of International Organisations in the field of gender equality, as well as related EU policy.

The aforementioned actions undertaken by GSGE for the implementation of gender mainstreaming are supplemented by a set of measures that political leaders of separate political arenas have already undertaken to implement. Such measures shall be the model for Action Plans to be undertaken by the Ministry of Justice, Transparency and Human Rights; the Ministry of Interior, Decentralisation and e-Government, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs; the Ministry of Defence, the Ministry of Economy, Competitiveness and Shipping; the Ministry of Environment, Energy and Climate Change; the Ministry of Education, Lifelong Learning and Religious Affairs; the Ministry of Labor and Social Security, the Ministry of Health and Social Solidarity, the Ministry of Rural Development and Food, the Ministry of Citizen Protection, the Ministry of Culture and Tourism. Indicatively, the measures to be undertaken by each Ministry are as follows:

1. Ministry of Interior, Decentralisation and e-Government

Within the framework of reformation and modernisation of Public Administration, the Ministry shall introduce the goal of gender equality not only into the Strategic Planning of all Ministries (competent Directorate), but also into the personnel policy (Directorate of Administration) through the new standard Bylaws that are being drafted. The respective provision shall continue to be implemented vis-a-vis the quota related to: a) the composition of Service Councils and b) the administration of Organisations supervised by the State. In addition, the respective provision shall be improved through its monitoring by the Public Organisations Registry, which shall register the gender of BoD members. At the same time, the Public Documents Code is due to change, in terms of its wording, to reflect both genders. Finally, a wider range of information shall be provided by the Citizen Service Centres (CSC) on issues related to programmes for women and gender equality.

After the reformation of local and regional government ("Kallikratis" Programme) all competencies in the fields of care, social services and welfare have become the sole responsibility of the New Municipalities (1st Level of Local Government). This framework empowers the operation of public entities active in support of vulnerable groups. Therefore, it has a positive effect on the quality of services provided to citizens, especially to women, who mostly receive such services. In the Regions (2nd Level of Local Government), new Regional Committees on Gender Equality (PEPIS) have been created, aiming at gender mainstreaming in the development programming of each Region and the implementation of specialised programmes focused on to women. A GSGE representative shall participate in each Regional Committee on Gender Equality, with the former supporting the latter's operation via NSRF funding. In parallel, gender equality policies are an explicit responsibility of the new Municipalities via the creation of service units working on Social Policy and Gender Equality Policy.

The new supervision mechanisms created to monitor legality and safeguard citizens' - men and women's - rights, are active, among other things, in the implementation and monitoring of legislative regulations in relation to gender equality. As far as municipal and regional elections are concerned, the quota of one third (1/3) for each gender per voting paper remains. Election legislation also now includes a monitoring system for nominations and outcomes per gender.

In the sector of immigration policy, the General Secretariat of Population and Social Cohesion commenced gender mainstreaming in the recently proclaimed Law 3838/2010 entitled: "Contemporary provisions on Greek citizenship, civil participation for expatriates and legal immigrants, other regulations». This law stipulates that children of single-parent families may acquire Greek citizenship (article 1A, par. 4). In this case, the application for the child's citizenship may be submitted by any surviving parent or by the person who is responsible for the child's parental custody. This is a provision that is favourable for women, given that the majority of single-parent families are headed by women. The Ministry, in cooperation with GSGE, shall deal, at institutional level, with women immigrants who are employed as domestic workers, the majority of who work informally and are in danger of being expelled. Finally, apart from the upcoming cooperation in legislative initiatives, as mentioned above, the Ministry shall cooperate with GSGE to design programmes funded by the European Fund for the Integration of Third Country Nationals for gender mainstreaming (e.g., e proclamation of a study on women's immigration).

More broadly, via the entire range of its actions to "strengthen and adapt staff skills and know-how in public administration for structural and institutional changes", the National Centre for Public Administration and Local Government (EKDDA) works in a gender mainstreamed fashion. More specifically, it shall include modules on gender equality in the Educational Programme for public administration officers (EKDDA), and shall develop special Training Programmes (Training Institute) on public gender equality policies for personnel promoted to heads of General Directorates, Directorates and Departments.

2. Ministry of Finance

The recent tax law (law 3842/2010) advanced women's economic independence. As of 2011, separate tax reports and reimbursements will be required. These will demonstrate the income of both spouses separately, thereby treating each spouse as an individual in respect to tax matters. Furthermore, the public social security system has recently been revised (law 3865/2010 (Official State Gazette article 120A/21-7-2010). Included in the changes are raising of retirement ages, which will be implemented stepwise through the end of December, 2013. Finally, in relation to the reform of the public accounting system, the General Secretariat for Fiscal Policy will arrange that gender equity issues be integrated into public finances (gender budgeting).

3. Ministry of Foreign Affairs

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs supports and promotes the implementation of the Greek State gender mainstreaming strategic goal via the following actions: a) equal representation of men and women Ministry employees in responsible posts in the Central Services, services abroad and Service Councils, b) promotion of women to candidature for international posts in European and International Organisations, c) equal representation of men and women in training programmes, d) development of actions, within the framework of bilateral development cooperation, in the field of gender equality and empowering of women's status in developing countries as well gender mainstreaming as a factor and cross-cutting parameter that governs the entire Greek development programme and e) combating of trafficking in women through actions for victim protection, prevention of further expansion of the phenomenon and effective repression of trafficking organisations within the framework of the National Action Plan, of which the Ministry is the National Coordinator. The development programmes of the National Development Cooperation Hellenic Aid continue being implemented in the victims' origin countries, aiming at their social re-integration after their voluntary repatriation. The actions supported reinforce the existing reception centres, social re-integration programmes, medical care and the development of skills and vocational training.

4. Ministry of Defence

Following the Resolution passed by the UN Security Council No. 1325/31.10.2000 on "Women, Peace and Security", Resolutions No. 1820/2008 and 1888/2009, as well as the Recommendations of the European Committee, the Ministry of Defence shall design a National Action Plan to implement Resolution no. 1325, ensuring women's participation in all decision-making before, during and after armed conflicts, in development and humanitarian actions at national, governmental and non-governmental level (national defence system, armed forces), as well as at European and international level (UN, EU, NATO, OSCE). The National Action Plans are also an EU commitment under the Swedish Presidency (2nd semester 2009). On these grounds, an Inter-Ministerial Committee shall be established, according to European standards, with the participation of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Ministry of Defence, the Ministry of Citizen Protection and the Ministry of Justice.

By virtue of Presidential Decree 54/2010, physical magnitudes and the Body Mass Index for the preliminary examinations for the admission to the Higher Military Educational Institutions/ Higher Military Schools for Non-Commissioned Officers were modified. Therefore, the minimum height has been diminished from 1.65 m to 1.60 m and the Body Mass Index limits were modified for men from "20-25" to "19-27" and for women from "18-22" to "18-25". A 5-month pregnancy/delivery leave to women military staff and a 9-month parenthood leave are provided to men and women military staff, according to the provisions of the civil servants' code. The parenthood leave is provided to men military staff in case the spouse is a military officer, works in the private sector or is a civil servant, by making a related declaration as to which parent shall make use of the parenthood leave, either once or accumulatively, but always successively to and after the end of the pregnancy/ delivery leave.

5. Ministry of Economy, Competitiveness and Shipping

The Ministry of Economy, Competitiveness and Shipping facilitates gender mainstreaming by using funding aids to help women (19 to 65 years old) to establish new enterprises in all fields of entrepreneurship within the framework of a programme entitled: “Support of Women’s Entrepreneurship”. The Programme is implemented by the Hellenic Organisation of Small and Medium Enterprises and Handicraft (HOSMEH). In addition, within the framework of the Programme entitled “Support of Youth Entrepreneurship”, new businesswomen (between the age of 19 and 40) are assisted in establishing new enterprises in all fields of activities, including processing, trade, services, tourism, recycling and limitation of pollution. Moreover, taking into consideration gender mainstreaming, several actions are promoted for the upgrading of knowledge and skills of women employees.

The internal structures of the most important institutional bodies that consult on the improvement of our national competitiveness are enriched with more women, who offer their different points of view on different issues, which are actually very important on the renewal of thoughts and practices that affect the competitiveness of Greek economy. In addition, the Ministry shall include more women, from academic and business environments, in the Expert Committee, which supports the projects of the National Competitiveness Council.

6. Ministry of Environment, Energy and Climate Change

The Ministry of Environment, Energy and Climate Change facilitates gender mainstreaming in its key programmes developed along three axes: a) energy saving, b) awareness on the dangers for public health caused by pollution, especially in cases of environmental crises and c) improvement of urban quality of life. More specifically, the campaign on energy saving shall be oriented to women too, who due to socialisation, hold a more important role, not only in the management of household matters, but also in the education of their children on environmental patterns. The integrated actions aimed combating chronic pollution - which has affected the soil and particularly surface and ground waters, thereby directly affecting public health in some areas of “high” risk – shall include the consequences for women’s reproductive health, as well as preventive and precautionary measures. Finally, the improvement programmes on the quality of urban environment, and especially of citizens’ transportation conditions in big cities, shall take into account that men and women have different transportation needs.

In its attempt to increase public awareness on environment issues via special TV shows that promote environmental training, the Ministry shall emphasise women’s pivotal role. Finally, the Ministry’s cooperation with women’s organisations will support local environmental protection and awareness-raising civil society organisations. With GSGE participation, the Ministry will also shall establish a working group to further foster gender mainstreaming in environmental and green development issues.

7. Ministry of Education, Lifelong Learning and Religious Affairs

Gender equality is a key principle for the operation of the New School, programmed by the Ministry of Education, Lifelong Learning and Religious Affairs. It shall be a crucial element for the new – draft - educational programmes and school booklets that will be carried out within the framework of the New School. This school will operate during extended hours (all day), to meet the needs of working parents - and especially mothers, who spend most of the rest of the day on their childcare. Especially in the field of Secondary Education, the goal is to make best use in school, and in general, of the wide range of materials produced by the Operational Programme “Education and Initial Vocational Training II” (teacher awareness, training of professional orientation counsellors, auxiliary educational programmes, etc) that aim to gender mainstream the educational process. With regard to Vocational High Schools, several actions have already been designed, and shall be funded in order to promote female participation in “male” professions, and male in “female” professions. The overarching goal is to change gender patterns in relation to the professions. Within the framework of lifelong learning promotion, the institution of Second Chance Schools shall continue, attended in particular by women who have interrupted their education. Parents School will also be established, which shall place gender equality at the top of their agenda’s.

Research and Technological Development is one of the crucial areas to be addressed for total integration and more efficient use of Human Resources within a framework of equality and equal opportunities. The General Secretariat for Research and Technology is going to support actions for the promotion of gender equality and especially for the support of women researchers. Within this framework, special emphasis shall be given to the promotion of research on equality issues, reinforcing related research areas. Gender studies shall be included as one of the priority topics. In parallel, when developing actions, the possibility of using bonuses for the participation of women researchers as well as a quota re: minimum participation for each gender shall be investigated, within the framework of a policy of equality and equal opportunities. Finally, networking of women researchers is being designed to enhance women's status in the field of Research and Technology.

Within the framework of the Programme "Gates of Youth Entrepreneurship", the General Secretariat for Youth will give particular consideration to young women who face significant unemployment problems. It will support their entrepreneurship actions, especially in sectors that promote green development and services in cultural and social sectors.. Furthermore, within the framework of the programmes "Youth in Action" and "European Youth Card", the General Secretariat of Youth shall prepare an information campaign targeted to women's organisations and young women, respectively. In cooperation with GSGE, the General Secretariat for Youth shall run an information campaign for young people (women and men) on issues of sexual health and especially contraception.

8. Ministry of Labour and Social Security

The Ministry of Labor and Social Security, within the framework of the Programme for Human Resource Development, is preparing Projects that aim to decrease the number of unemployed women on one hand, and the strengthening of employed women on the other. Such Projects include actions for the improvement of women's professional skills and the updating of their knowledge, so as to facilitate their adaptation to the evolving needs of the labor market. In addition, new actions are being planned in relation to the harmonisation of family and professional life through the child care provision for children of employed and unemployed women, as well as through actions that aim at the elimination of professional discrimination – which includes the gender salary gap.

The Greek Manpower Organisation (GMO), in cooperation with GSGE, has established a permanent working group on gender equality. The primary goal is to prepare an Action Plan on Gender Mainstreaming throughout GMO work (training of Employment Councillors working with Employment Promotion Centers, Apprenticeship Schools, Programmes for New Jobs, Programmes for Young Self-Employed Persons, internal assessment systems, etc). At the same time, GMO shall continue to announce specialised programmes for unemployed women aimed at combating over-representation of women among unemployment groups, and recruiting more women in the labor market.

In the re-establishment of the Body of Labor Inspectors (BLI), the competency of equal treatment between men and women in employment and labor is clear the recording and processing system of statistics on gender equality is being upgraded in order to enable proper assessment of the situation in relation to equality in working environments. At the same time, BLI shall foster gender mainstreaming in its work and actions – more specifically, in the updating and provision of information on labor issues, legal counselling, reconciliation (labour disputes) and hearings processes. Within this framework, an information campaign shall be prepared for employees and enterprises on the equal treatment of men and women. In addition, in synch with GSGE policy on combating violence against women, the General Secretariat for Public Health shall develop actions aimed at preventing and assisting victims of trafficking.

B. Information and awareness raising on health and medical issues, with priority those that mostly affect women, but also issues of sexual and reproduction health more broadly.

Within the framework of the National Plan for Health, promoted by the Ministry of Health and Social Solidarity (MHSS), women's knowledge and prevention is a priority. According to statistics, Greek women are not fully informed about the importance of preventative check-ups to maintain their health. As a result, some types of cancer - such as breast cancer and cancer of the reproductive system - are included in the most common cancer types in our country. Cooperation with GSGE is integrated within the framework of the MHSS campaign on primary prevention. Ministry personnel (nurses, social workers) shall offer information and consulting – free of charge – on health and prevention issues in 14 GSGE Counselling Centres. Therefore, it is obvious that gender mainstreaming has been integrated in approaches to health issues - and that such mainstreaming is going to expand. GSGE contribution shall play a key role in MHSS efforts to increase presymptomatic examination centres within the framework of new Prevention and Health Education Centres. Communication policy and women's awareness vis-a-vis annual check-ups shall be mutually structured through the information materials that are about to be produced.

C. MHSS shall continue its current awareness campaign on smoking effects. Information actions shall be developed targeted to women, as according to the World Health Organisation, Greek women hold one of the highest percentages globally (39%).

10. Ministry of Rural Development and Food

The Ministry of Rural Development and Food shall foster gender mainstreaming via the encouragement of the development of entrepreneurship initiatives by women (increased credits award for women). It shall do so via the following measures: modernisation of rural holdings, support also of non-rural activities, of the establishment and development of very small enterprises and of tourism activities. In addition, by virtue of such measures, some sectors shall be promoted: the textile industry, production of sweets and traditional products, production of cleaning products, production of essential oils, manufacture of pottery, creation of jewellery, hairdressing activities, etc. Women or women cooperatives are mostly interested in such kind of activities, either because they are already activate in them, or because they are given the opportunity to be activate in them via the Programme for Rural Development 2007-2013.

Within the framework of training and education actions addressed to rural workers (on issues of good agricultural practices), special care shall be taken that women participate.

Support actions for enhancement of local economies also include networking actions, as well support of enterprises and cooperatives (promotion, connection to national and international promotion units for their products, exhibitions, etc), in which women's cooperatives may participate as well. Participation of bodies that represent women's rights has been assessed and awarded with extra credits during the selection of Local Action Groups, especially in the field of decision-making for the implementation of local development strategy (Axis 4 – Leader Approach).

The promotion of the Programme for Rural Development and the operation of the National Rural Network include the organisation of events promoting women's role in rural areas, awareness-raising events on gender equality issues and information events on the potential of financing by the Programme, with great emphasis being put on the participation of women and women's cooperatives. Finally, the Association of Women Rural-Tourist Cooperatives participates actively in the National Rural Network.

Such themes shall be also included in the educational programmes of the School.

In cooperation with the General Secretariat for Gender Equality, measures shall be undertaken to upgrade living and education conditions in detention facilities (programmes for the reconciliation of family life and detention, such as parental custody, visits, nurseries, etc). Furthermore, measures are being undertaken to better prepare the process of re-integration of women who have been released from prison in cooperation with the Public Law Legal Entity “EPANODOS”. Indicatively, the following actions shall be implemented: a) preparation of women detainees for their release (6-8 months before their release) by providing information on their potential for social and employment integration after having served their sentence, b) counselling to women that are about to or have already been discharged (social – psychological – legal – employment counselling), c) special counselling programmes for minor detainees and discharged women, d) special programmes in cooperation with competent rehabilitation bodies for addicted detainees and discharged women, e) special programmes for discharged mothers, and f) special intervention programmes in cooperation with competent bodies for the children of women who have been released from prison.

exhibitions of women's creation and expression). The Ministry shall support the cultural exhibitions organised by GSGE by providing the use of Olympic Games facilities, in order to effectively promote art creations in the field of gender and equality. In 2011 and 2012, the Ministry of Culture, within the framework of the institution "European Heritage Days", shall organise educational actions in Museums and cultural areas focusing on the active participation of women in social activities of all types, as well as their contribution to history and art.

At minimum, a sex-based quota shall be implemented in NSRF funded programmes for the employment of unemployed persons. With regard to recruitment of personnel in archaeological sites, which shall be implemented under our own supervision, there shall be systematic recording of the created employment per gender, age and educational level. By the end of 2011, such information shall be assessed and, if necessary, active policies shall be adopted to strengthen women's employment.

In the field of Tourism and within the framework of networking actions, the institution of women's cooperatives shall be supported, especially on the islands and in mountainous areas of the country, implementing a different policy due to the special conditions prevailing in such areas. The fields of culture (organisation of cultural events, promotion of Mediterranean diet, art workshops, etc), environment (recycling, renewable energy sources, etc), provision of tourism services (accommodation, restaurants, etc), social services (care of addicts, elderly, youth volunteer groups, etc) shall receive special support.
